

Lisa Haye is a senior at John Jay College of Criminal Justice, majoring in economics with a minor in computer science. She is also currently a research and administrative assistant at the Office for Student Research & Creativity, whose main duties include providing mentorship to the Office's Research Scholarship cohort, conducting administrative functions, and coordinating the upcoming 2024 Research & Creativity Expo for the College. Lisa is also an OSRC 2023-2024 scholarship recipient studying eugenics' influence on economic theory and policy under the mentorship of Professor David Munns.

She has previously interned for organizations such as the New York City Department of Investigation, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms, and Explosives (ATF), and the Brennan Center for Justice. She has also conducted research, per funding from a National Science Foundation (NSF) Research Experiences for Undergraduates (REU) grant, exploring perceptions of structural racism in housing valuation via 3D visualizations at Hunter College, CUNY.

Ultimately, Lisa aspires to go to graduate school to conduct research that centers upon marginalized lives.
